Customer Problem Statement Template:

Home buyers, real estate investors, and market analysts often struggle to understand the factors that influence housing prices due to the large volume and complexity of real estate data. Existing information is scattered and difficult to interpret, making it challenging to identify market trends and make informed decisions.

The project "Visualizing Housing Market Trends: An Analysis of Sale Prices and Features using Tableau" aims to solve this problem by providing interactive visualizations and dashboards that analyze sale prices and important housing features. This solution enables users to easily explore market patterns, compare property characteristics, and gain valuable insights for better real estate decision-making.
